INDOCTRINATION

St. Mary's, the Academy, offers a four year training program, under the sponsorship of the Sisters of St. Joseph of Carondelet. This academy was founded to educate young women to take a Christian active role in society. The colors, the ties, traditions, and uniforms were only a part of the integrated education offered at the Academy. Recruitment.began with eighth grade civilians. After exposure to the regimen and procedures of the Academy, these girls were interviewed, tested, and given the option to enlist.

The new recruits went through basic training which took place during welcome week. During that week, the recruits learned the importance of student involvement, school spirit and pride. The main objective of basic training for recruits was to prove that they could accept the rigors of Academic life. After basic training, the newly enlisted freshman began to work at earning their insignias. Academy students wore the insignia of rank around their collar in the form of a tie: green, blue, red, and gold. The tie color remained with a class for four years.

The freshmen, green ties, assembled and ready to begin their four year trek, stood at attention and waited for instructions from their moderator and teachers. The sophomores, decorated with blue ties, turned an about-face and left behind the ways of "first year cadets," advancing toward stardom in Sophomore Show and buckling down in serious study. Red was the badge of determination symbolizing the juniors on their march to academic success, initiating along the way a new tradition for junior activity. At the end of the line, the top-ranked seniors, draped in gold, stood at attention in a final salute to the Academy at graduation. Becoming a part of the Academy was not just a job, but an exciting adventure.

We dedicate this yearbook to the Gold Ties, the commanders of the future and Stephanie Starks who will always be a part of the Gold Tie Class.

AN EARTH-SHAKING EVENT

The first full day of school at St. Mary's Academy for the 1981-82 school year was characterized by a earth tremor that registered 5.2 on the Richter Scale. The student body of S.M.A. liked to think of incidents such as these, not as catastrophies, but as grand starts to a new beginning.

St. Mary's Academy salutes the school year 1981-82!

ACADEMIC TRAINING

The academic program at the Academy covered a broad scope of undergraduate studies to prepare cadets for both diversified and specialized activities required of Mary's Force officers. It could definitely be said that this year kept the first class officers (seniors) and recruits (underclassmen) very busy. All courses were taught by the Academy's faculty, composed primarily of Mary's Force commanders-in-chief who were highly qualified (through their own education and experience) to instruct and motivate cadets. At the Academy, the following were required areas of study: Religion, English, Foreign Language, Math, Science, Social Studies, Fine Arts, Physical Education, and Driver's Education. In addition, the Academy offered numerous electives which prepared the cadet for her future, helping her to be all that she could be.

Hi Sherrina,
We've become good friends since one introduced us. Lets become better friends next year. The years now but come over my house over the summer.

Love Ya

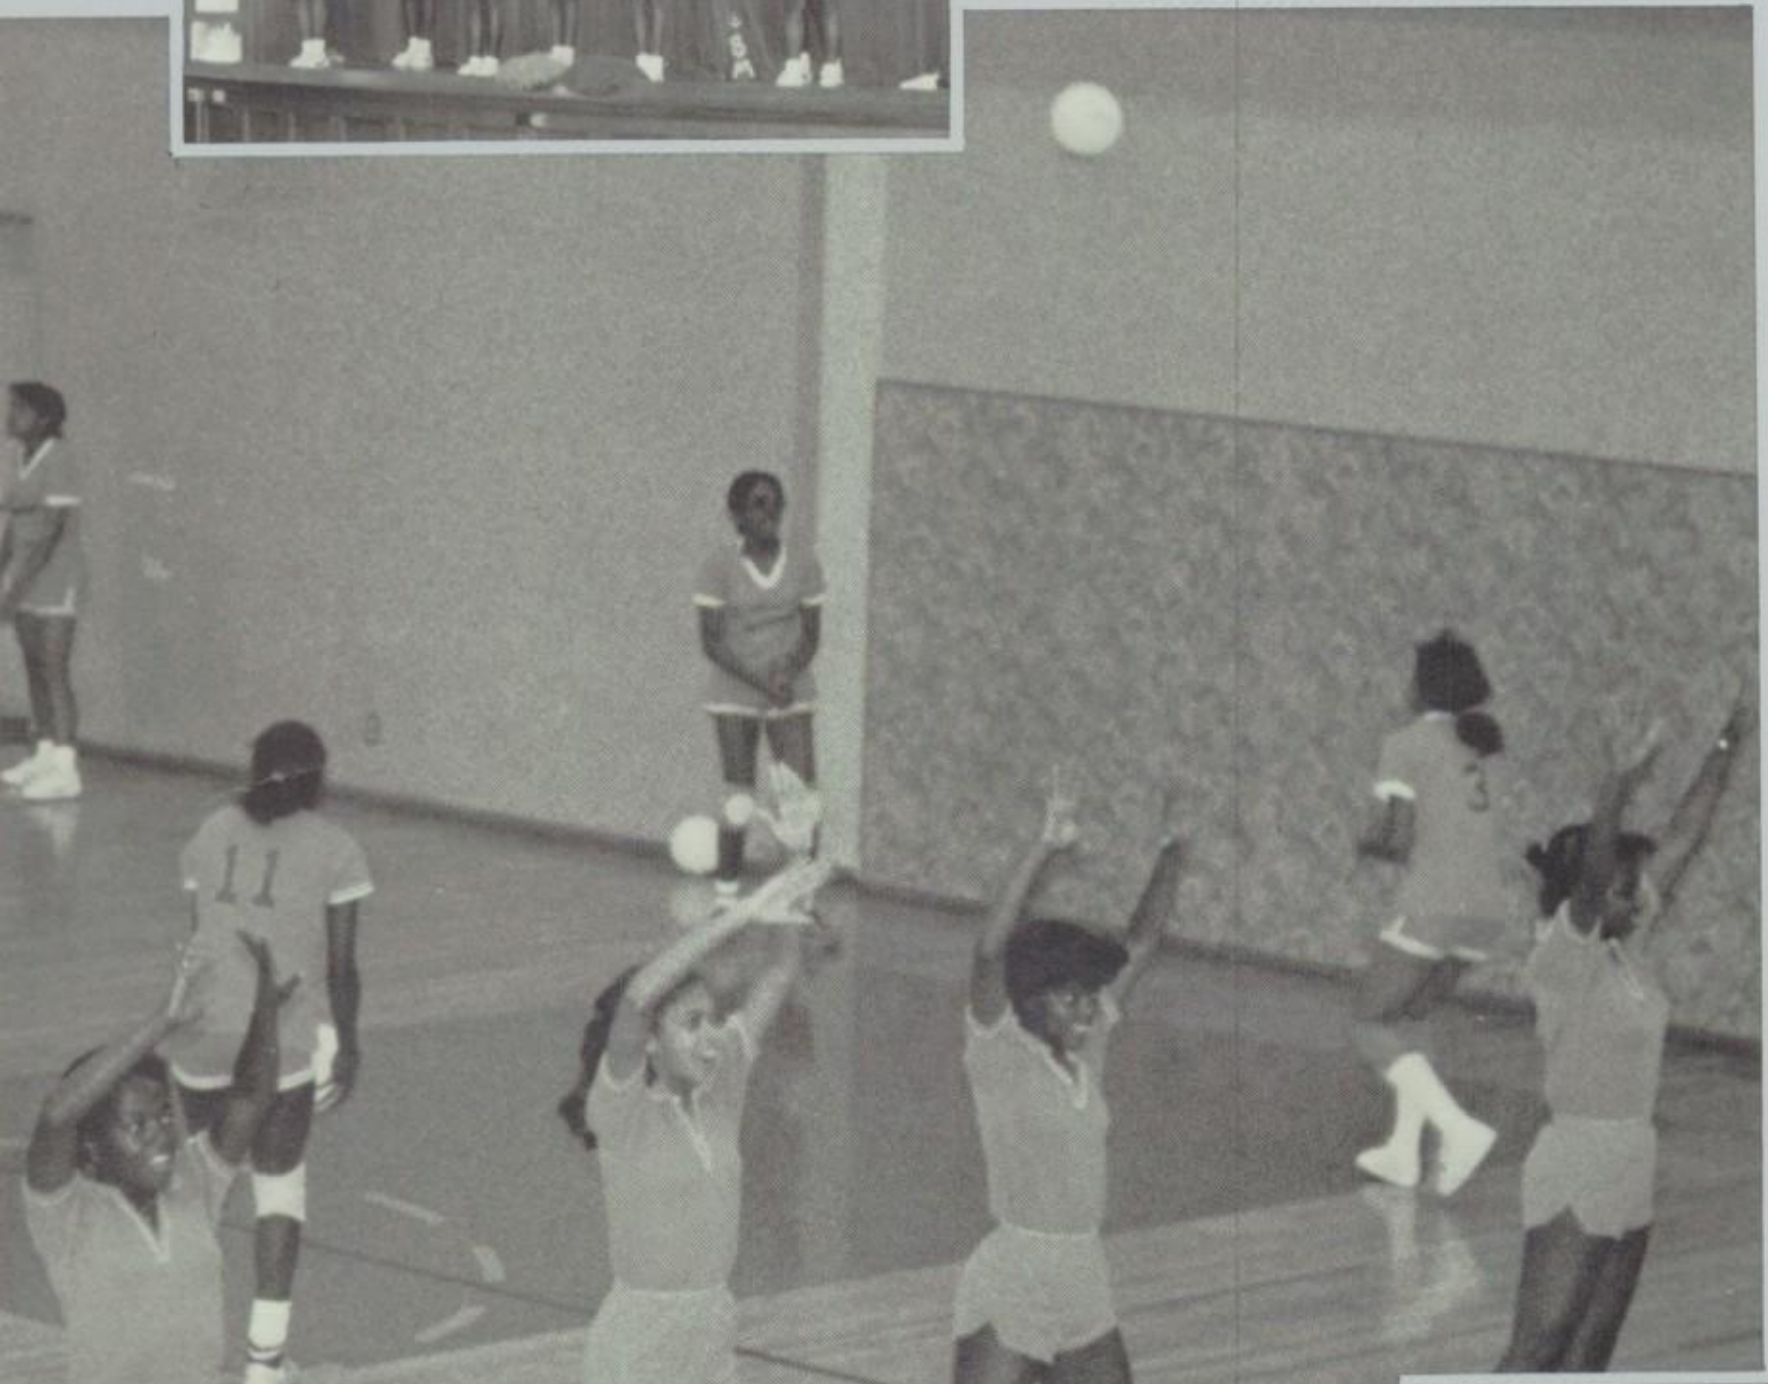
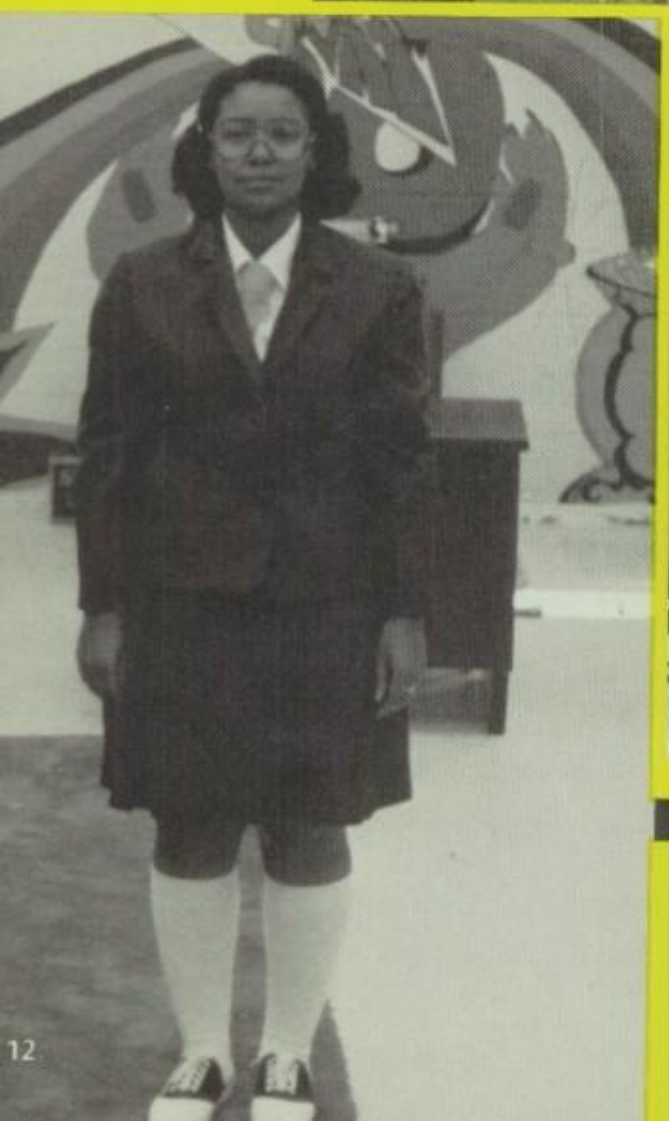
HAND-to-HAND COMBAT

Spirit was alive and enthusiastic at the Academy, with the aid of unified teams in the various sports such as: volleyball, basketball, tennis, softball, and track. The force was on its way in hand-to-hand combat. Friendships to last a lifetime were formed between team and the coach.

How can one help from cheering when Tammy Richards
shoots for two,
Or when Tandalaya scores a point for the Gold & Blue?
Staci Broussard hits homeruns with class and style,
While Carla McFolling runs the mile.
When Cecile and Dawn had the score at 40-love,
The other team obviously needed help from above.
Then there is always the Cheerleaders, Pep Squad,
Drill Team-that's where it's at,
To dazzle the other team with HAND-to-HAND COMBAT!!!





A NEW UNIFORMITY

The year of 1981-82 was a year of new regimentation. The Academy's uniform regulations took a sharp turn to the right, with the addition of blazers and traditional saddle oxfords. For our new recruits, the green ties, the beginning was difficult, because added to the regulations were 4 ponytails and gold ribbons. But, there were rays of light ahead, golden rays that is, for the seniors who were finally given the priviledge of senior sweaters. Well, the year was finally over. . . All belles, AT EASE.

The year of 1982 saw traditions return from the past
Things were getting back the way they used to be,
Finally, at last!
The return of the saddle oxfords, black and white,
The skirts were lowered to right above the knee,
The look was simply out-a-sight.
Ties are a sign of togetherness,
Gold, Red, Blue, and Green,
They symbolized spirit, unity, and pride,
A wonderful sight to be seen.
So when one saw a Belle,
Only great things could one say,
St. Mary's Academy will long remain,
Forever and a day!!

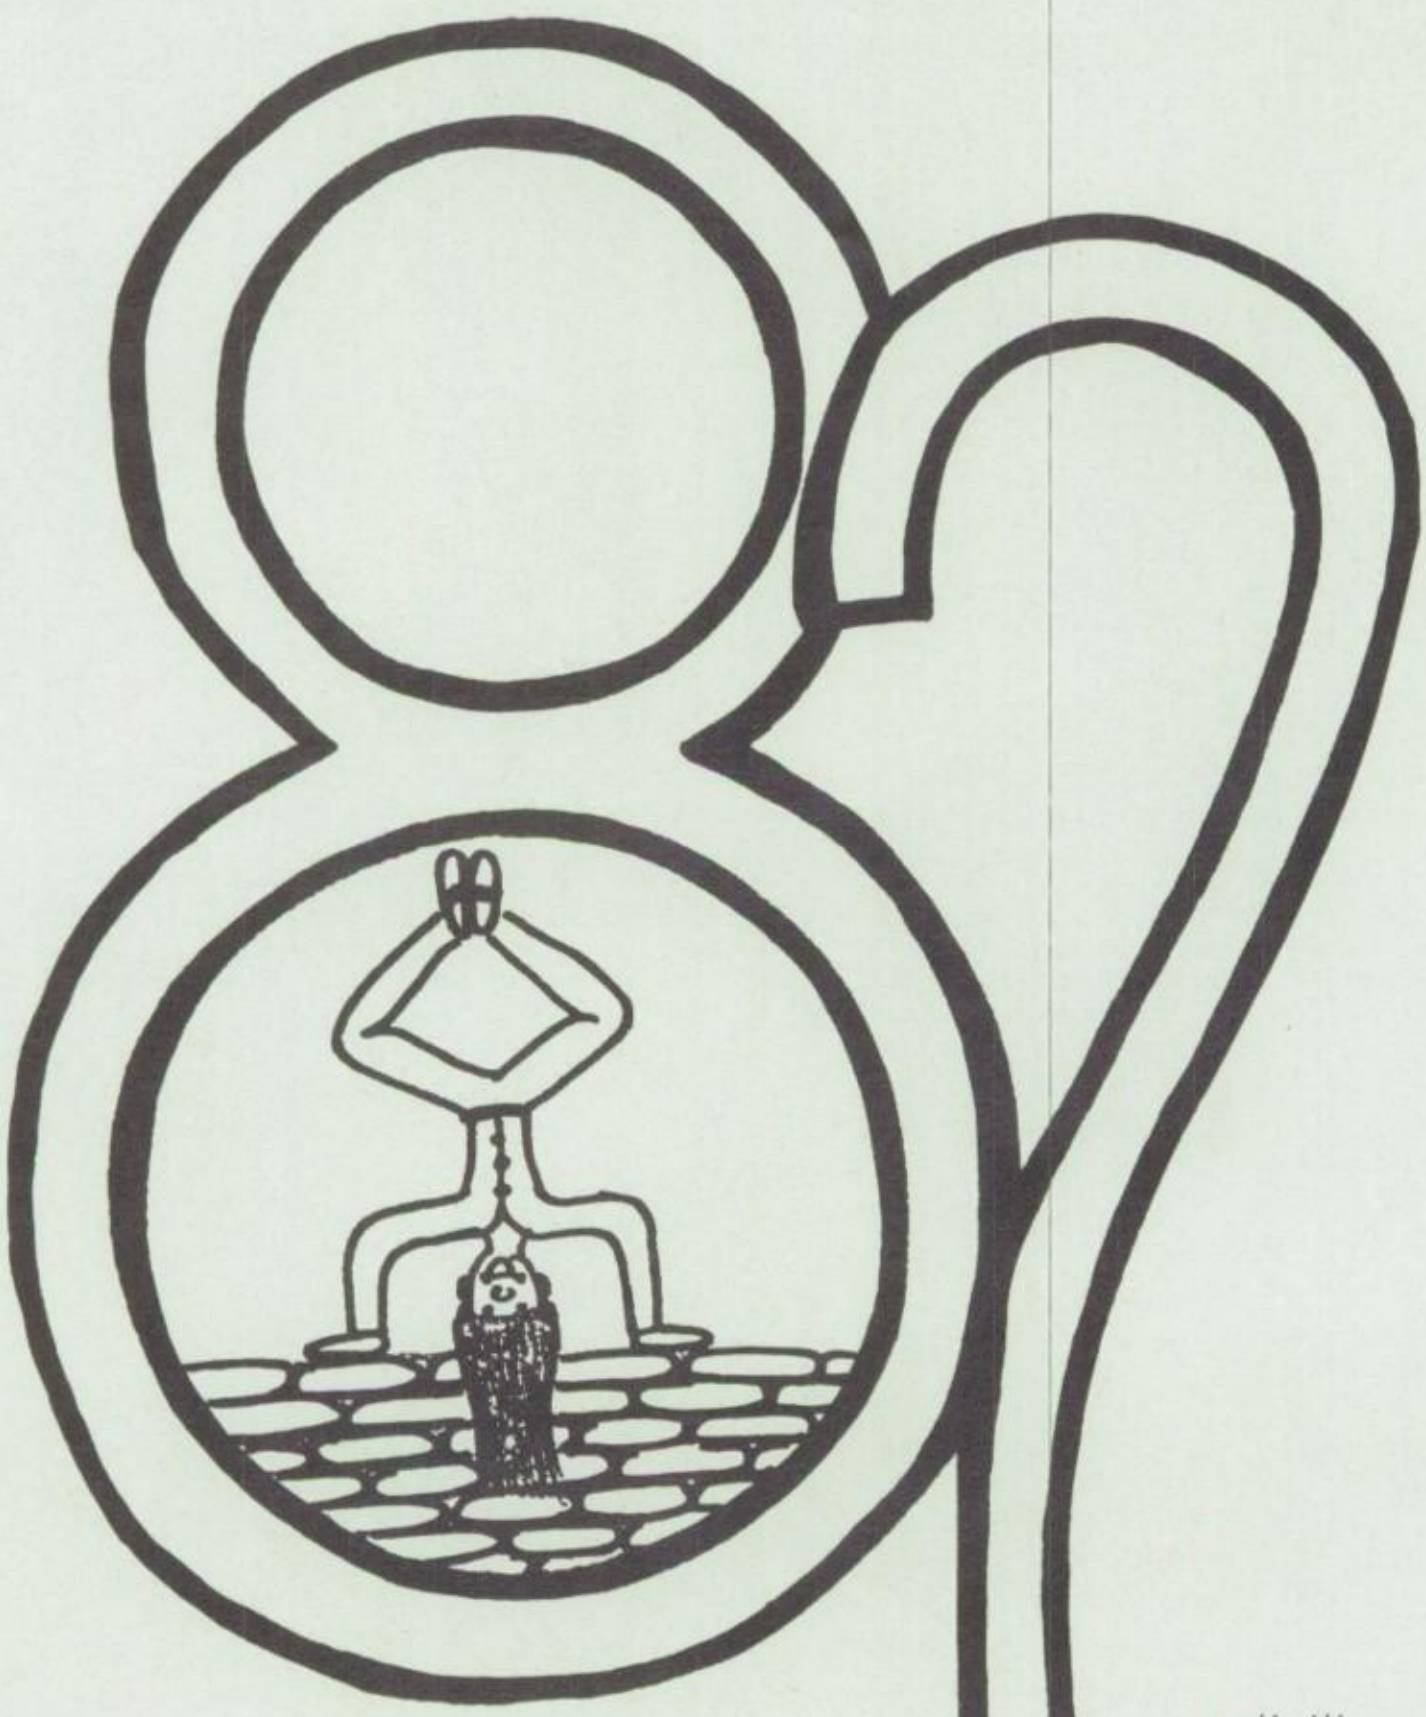
AWOL (Absent Without Leave)

St. Mary's Academy was noted for its enthusiastic activities. The Commanders-in-chief believed that "There was more to school than just reading, writing and arithmetic." S.M.A. believed in family involvement, when it came to extracurricular activities. The Dad's Club sponsored special projects such as: the Belles et Beaux Dance and a Father-Daughter Breakfast. The Mothers were involved in the Fontbonne Guild, the annual raffle, and the Christmas Dance. The Academy's students for the year 1981-1982 participated in activities ranging from a world's Finest Chocolate Drive to the Belles et Beaux Dance, from Halloween Crazy Day to the Toy Drive, and to a summer car wash sponsored by our loyal Seniors /ASB.

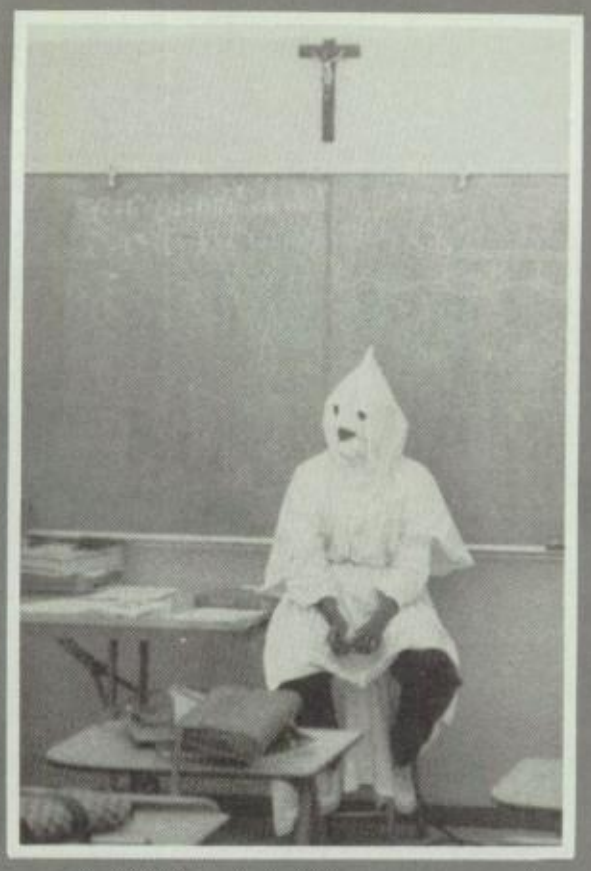


activities

A.W.O.L.

FRESHMEN INITIATION

The theme of this year's initiation was the Jungle. Each of the Freshmen sections was authorized to dress as "Inhabitants of the Jungle." The characters included, Tarzan, Jane, Monkeys, Natives, Banana Trees, and Jaguars. Some of the games the Freshmen were involved in were Simon Says, Balloon Toss, and the Obstacle Course, But, somehow they made it through to become official members of the Academy.



HALLOWEEN CRAZY DAY

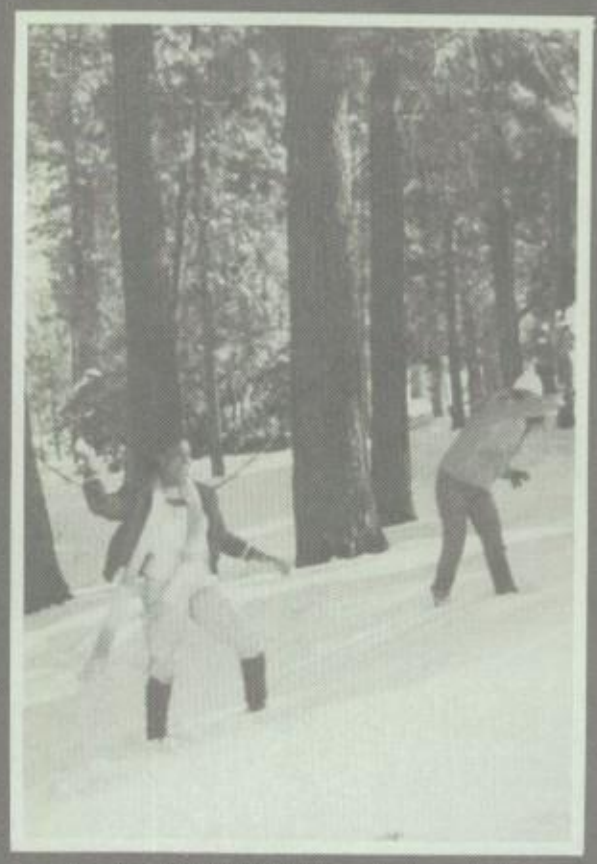
Halloween Crazy Day will long be remembered at Saint Mary's Academy.
Date: Friday, October 30, 1981
Time: 12:40 p.m.
Place: Saint Mary's Academy's campus

Halloween goodies were prepared by the Freshman class. Decorations were hung around the school by the Sophomores. Games such as Toss Across, Bobbin for Apples, and Roulette Wheel set a carnival atmosphere but the best was yet to come.

A miracle was performed in the locker room. It was transformed into a spooky deep dark haunted house. The haunted house was filled with vampires, blobs, tombstones and spooky music by the seniors. Thanks to this, major success goes to the A.S.B.

BELLES AND BEAUX

Belles and Beaux was a formal dance sponsored by the Dad's Club given annually. It was held on November 13, this year, at the Marriot Hotel, open to St. Mary's accompanied by dates. The festivities included dancing, photos, and a traditional queen contest. This year's theme was, "A November to Remember". To keep the memories of Belles and Beaux, the ASB ordered armbands. This year's queen contest was approached in a different way than in previous years. To determine the winner, the entire student body voted on the finalist. The Belles and Beaux Queens of 1981-82 were; Phyllis Simmons (Senior), Denise Mozee (Junior), Stacie Broussard (Sophomore), Kimberly Mack (Freshman).



SENIOR RETREAT

Fifty-four senior ranking officers were M.I.A. (missing in action) from December 1-3. They spent their three day r&r at Camp Maristella. The retreat squad included: Fr. Jim, Fr. Dick, Fr. Leon and Tina Rocque. Upon return the seniors did have a few complaints: For one, the bus ride was a bit bumpy, especially for those who were sitting on suitcases in the aisles. Second, after they arrived, it wasn't so bad, it was ten o'clock at night and they had to carry their bags up to the main lodge, slipping on ice all the way (Nancy sprained her ankle). The next morning however, the seniors were all ready to greet the snow and breakfast. That was the first of many meal time adjustments they had to make. All in all the retreat however, was a fulfilling experience they admitted. For many it was the first time they had seen snow, (Nancy sprained her ankle again) or live wildlife, like the raccons that visited their cabins at night. (Many swore that was what the dinner stew contained). The small group drew closer and learned many things they never knew about people they saw everyday. Amidst the snow and peace they found one another, the Gold Tie Class of 82.

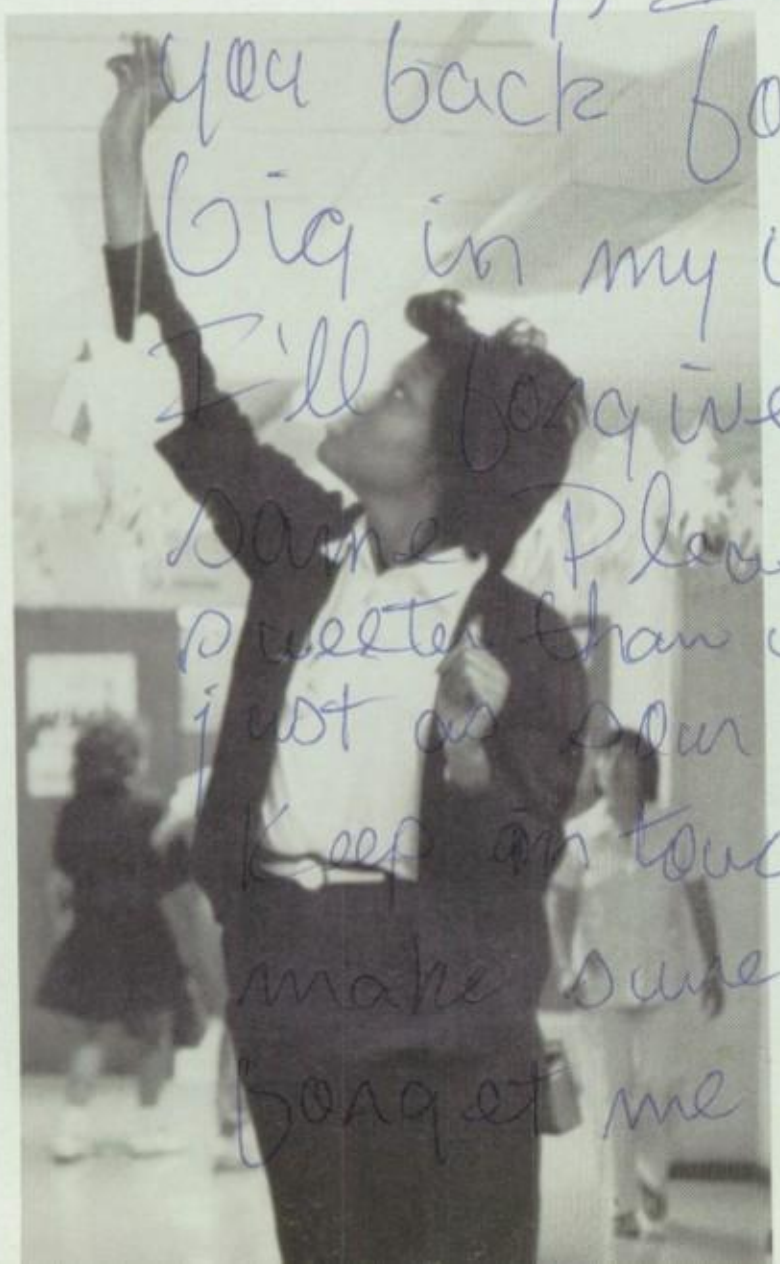
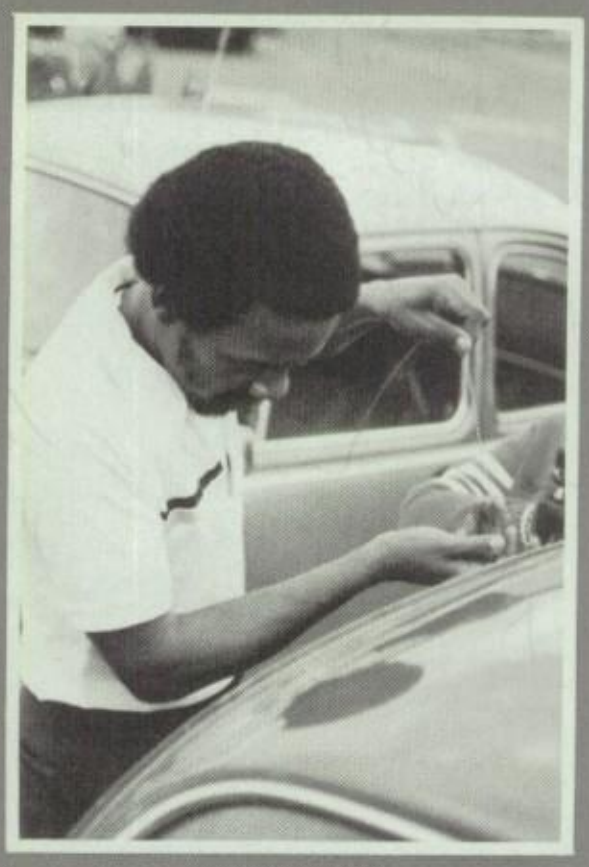
CHRISTMAS DECORATING

Each year the students, under the direction of the Senior Class, add yuletide spirit to the school by decorating the halls. The four classes were each assinged a hall and each hall had a theme. The freshman decorated the halls from striped candy canes to pinwheel cookies. The Sophomores decked the halls with snowflakes and snowmen to bring to mind the feeling of a "Winter Wonderland." The Juniors brought back the traditional song of Christmas that everyone enjoys, "The Twelve Days of Christmas". The Seniors "tis'ed the season to be jolly" by topping off the ceiling with Christmas oraments.





AN ORDINARY DAY FOR ASB

BASKETBALL

THE VARSITY BASKETBALL TEAM

A team with so much style and grace
They placed a smile on everyone's face
A team that had so much finesse
And everyone knew that they were the best.
Tammy showed off her moves that were out of sight
And sent the crowd into sheer delight.
Tanya's jump-shot was as smooth as "Silk"
Like her favorite basketball man Jamaal Wilkes.
When it was time to rebound everyone agreed
That no one could do the job better than Tandy.
D.J. played with all her might
And hustled for the team night after night.
Opponents started to shiver with fear
Whenever they saw that "Big Phae" was near.
Staci, a "Brew" as she was commonly called,
With her moves left others looking in awe
Sheryl and Theresa were called "The Trees"
And when opponents saw them they would fall on their knees.
Yolanda was the tough kid, who took all the abuse
And got right back up with a lighted fuse.
Phyllis played forward and guard and rebounded, too
There's not anything that she couldn't do
The dribbler with poise was Lisa D.,
The crowd was thrilled by what they did see
Carleen cheered the team on with spirit and pride
As she let her team know that she was on their side
They were led to victory by their coach
Sr. Michael Mioli the "Great Italian Hope"
Sabrina was the manager which wasn't very easy
but she worked very hard to please the team.
So let it be said that no where around
A better basketball team than the Belles can be found.

IN MEMORY OF . . .

Tracy Danielle Patton

September 13, 1964-February 25, 1982

"I Remember"

I can remember her clearly, with her cheerful smile;
Who would have known she would be with us for just awhile.
Though death is sad, it has no real season;
Tracy was with us for a special reason.
Oh how sudden she passed this life away;
I can remember speaking with her just the other day.
Death separates us from life and the past;
Life, a mystery, how long will it last?
Tell your family and friends that you love them now;
Because death is sudden and living is now!
Her memory is in our hearts and her friendship too;
Just remember Tracy, WE ALL LOVE YOU!
God took you from us, so soon, we wonder why?
I wish we had the chance to say "good-bye."

FIRST BATTALION

The 1982 Yearbook Staff became "the first battalion" under veterans Jeanne Hardemion and Djuna Duronslet. Jeanne assumed command with Phaebra Croft as battalion co-captians, answering only to Ms. Stegman, the commander-in-chief. The yearbook business duty fell to Djuna ("Captain Moneybags"), and her staff recruits, Michelle Franklin and Shawina Tims. The staff artist, Angie Wilkerson, became the tempermental MORALE OFFICE, and kept the troups entertained with hot sauce, scribble contests, and penny pitching. Captain Copy (Melanie Bradford) commandeered any stray staff members and singlehandedly positioned them in the front lines of typewriter duty. Rumor had it that Melanie had an undisciplined staff, consisting of M.I.A. Stacey Williams, staff char. Peaches Buckley, ghostwriter Phyllis Simmons, quick-thinking Nancy Wilson, and gopher Karen Rhodes. Staff Sergeant Tamala Bush bossed and bullied her layout staff mercilessly, and the dedicated Jackie Evans, Dawn Pattillo, and Rhonda Davis took the blame for all her mistakes. Bleary-eyed photographers Dawn Pattillo and Phaebra Croft closed in on their innocent, camera-shy- victims, and many of the photos that were never used looked like they were part of a sneak attack. With the "support and intellectual contribution" (in her own humble words) of our cheap (oops!) chief ally General Jackie Purdy, the staff and their commander worked long hours, under-fed and under-paid. With the publication of their 1982 book, tactic maneuvers ended and the mission was accomplished.

The staff gives special thanks to Mrs. Cashman, for use of the typing room.

SALUTING FAREWELL

BE ONE OF US

The road from adolescense to adulthood is long and winding. Throughout the past four years, the Gold Ties have experienced sadness, joy, pain, and love, but through it all they have grown. As a class, the Gold Ties have realized their potential. They were no longer afraid to strive for everything within themselves. They were now prepared for their journey down the path of life toward the unknown. As for what lay ahead, they did not know; but they went forward. In the words of Brian May (Queen), "Did we leave our way behind us such a long, long way behind us, who knows where, where the light of day will find us?" The graduating class of 1982 stood together for the last time, and saluted you. Saint Mary's.
